Welcome to Hawaii – E komo mai

Aloha Colleagues and Friends:

Cancer registration and surveillance activities provide the fundamental basis and resources for modern day population-based cancer control efforts around the world. The various activities performed by cancer registries and registrars support a wide variety of research activities that serve a multitude of disciplines and populations.

For the past 25 years, the IACR scientific congress has grown and continues as an excellent forum for cancer research professionals and support staff to discuss and to exchange views and information. It is our hope that the chosen theme for IACR 2003—“Cancer Registration and Surveillance, Around the World” and the selected topics: Cancer in Migrants, Diet and Cancer, HPV, Vaccines and Cervical Cancer, Data Harmonization Issues, and Pacific Islanders and Indigenous Peoples are stimulating and reflect some of the multiple and critical issues facing cancer registries in the 21st century.

As hosts of this year’s congress, we will do our best to provide an informative and memorable event for all participants. We look forward to sharing our host culture with you and wish you an enjoyable stay in our island paradise.

Hawai'i

The Polynesian migration to Hawai'i was part of a remarkable human achievement: the discovery and settlement of the remote, widely scattered islands of the central Pacific. Scholars believe that around 400 A.D. or earlier, voyagers from the Cook Islands, Tahiti-nui, and/or Hiva (Marquesas) settled Hawai'i. Before the development of navigational instruments, and at a time when others were sailing close to the coastlines of continents, voyagers from Fiji, Tonga, and Samoa began to settle islands in an ocean area of over 10 million square miles. These Polynesians sailed large double-hulled canoes built with tools of stone, bone, and coral. The canoes were navigated without instruments by expert seafarers who depended on their observations of the ocean, sky, and stars, as well as traditional knowledge of the patterns of nature, for clues to the direction and location of islands.

By the time European explorers entered the Pacific Ocean in the 16th century, almost all the habitable islands had been settled for hundreds of years. In Hawai'i, the Native Hawaiians, or Kanaka Maoli, lived in a highly organized, self-sufficient, subsistent social system based on communal land tenure with a sophisticated language, culture, and religion. By the time the first known Westerner visited the islands in 1778, Hawai'i's population had grown to something between 400,000 and 800,000 people.

Kamehameha the Great was Hawai'i's first ruling monarch. This fierce warrior king succeeded in unifying the entire island group into one kingdom by 1810. King Kamehameha I's reign was marked by peace, law, and order. He established trade with foreign countries, introduced new animal and plant life, promoted agriculture and fostered industry. A contemporary of Napoleon and George Washington, King Kamehameha I accomplished all that he did without the aid of a written language.

Over the years, the Hawaiian Islands became a beacon for voyagers in an era of international imperialism. For the most part, Hawaiians welcomed the foreign crews, not knowing they brought diseases deadly to the native population. During the next 100 years, more than 80 per cent of the Kanaka Maoli population succumbed to these illnesses. Hawai'i's physical, cultural, and political landscape was further transformed with the arrival of the first American missionaries in 1820, which introduced not only a new religion, but different political and social views as well. In the mid-1800s, descendants of the missionaries established Hawai'i's sugar industry. The declining native population meant plantation owners soon began to look overseas for a labor supply. Laborers were recruited from China, then Japan, Portugal, Puerto Rico, Korea and finally from the Philippines, which gave rise to Hawai'i's thriving, multicultural community of today.

Between the unification of the islands in 1810 and the overthrow of and the Hawaiian government in 1893, the people of Hawai'i transitioned from a feudal society into an independent constitutional monarchy, internationally recognized by countries around the world. The 1893 overthrow of Queen Lili'uokalani and the subsequent establishment of the Republic of Hawai'i in 1894 marked the passing of the last Hawaiian monarchy. In 1898 Hawai'i was annexed by the United States, and in 1900 it became a U.S. territory. On August 21, 1959 it became the 50th American state. In 1993, the U.S. Congress, President Clinton and the United Church of Christ formally apologized for the overthrow of the Kingdom of Hawai'i.

Hawai'i. Mention the word and a thousand island images come to mind. White and black sand beaches flanking pristine waters. Rare indigenous plants and lush, tropical rainforests. Exciting adventures by land and sea. Warm and gentle trade wind breezes and the hospitality of a culturally diverse community. But pictures and words alone are not enough to appreciate the geographical, cultural, and historical significance of these islands. To know Hawai'i you must experience it. E komo mai... come and let the people of Hawai'i share with you their Islands of Aloha. ✨

Honolulu and Congress Venue

On August 21, 1959, Hawai'i became the 50th state of the USA, with Honolulu as its capital. Today, Honolulu is home to people from throughout the Pacific—it has no ethnic majority. Honolulu is also the state's center of business, culture and politics, in addition to being one of the world's prime tourist destinations

HOW TO GET TO HONOLULU

THE VENUE FOR PRE- AND POST-CONGRESS MEETINGS

For the convenience of the conferees, all meeting venues for pre- and post-congress meetings will take place at the hotel property. Please check conference signage for exact meeting locations.

Scientific Program

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

The official language used for presentation will be English. No interpretation will be provided.

PRE-CONGRESS COURSES

The IACR and NAACCR have collaborated to provide a one-day advanced short course on the latest developments in Biostatistics and statistical methodology. This pre-conference course will be offered at the Ilikai Hotel on Friday, 13 June. Workshop fee is $175.00 USD payable to NAACCR. Please visit the NAACCR website at <http://www.naacr.org/News/ameeting.html> to register. Class size is limited and notebook computer may be required.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

All plenary sessions will be held in the Pacific Ballroom. Six invited speakers of international repute will update you on central topics related to cancer registries. No other scientific activity is scheduled to take place simultaneously with the plenary sessions.

POSTERS/ORAL PRESENTATIONS

The organizers on the basis of abstracts received will choose oral and poster presentations. Posters will be exhibited and judged during the three days of the congress, 16–18 June 2003.

ABSTRACTS

Participants who wish to present a free oral communication or a poster should fill in the abstract submission form and the abstract form in English. Please note the instructions on the form! Mail or transmit the two forms in one envelope to the IACR 2003 Secretariat/Hawai'i Tumor Registry. One can also submit the abstract and necessary forms via fax at 808/587-0024 or as an e-mail attachment to htr@aloha.net

DEADLINES FOR ABSTRACTS

The deadline for abstract submissions is 31 March 2003. Notifications of abstract acceptance together with instructions concerning presentations will be sent on 11 April 2003. Participants who present an oral communication or a poster must pay the registration fee by 16 May 2003. The period of reduced registration rates also ends on 16 May 2003.
